Learn at Lunch: UCLA/LAUSD Employee Enrollment Program (TIE-INS)

UCLA Staff Assembly hosts regular Learn-at-Lunch events for all UCLA employees. This month we are partnering with the TIE-INS team to learn more about their program that enables UCLA employees to enroll their children in one of our nine partner schools in LAUSD.

Friday, September 27, 2019
12:00 p.m. - 1:00 p.m.
Charles E. Young Research Library
Main Conference Room (Room 11360)

Together In Education In Neighboring Schools Program (TIE-INS) program enables UCLA employees to enroll their children in one of our nine partner schools in LAUSD. These schools are located near the UCLA campus and UCLA Health offices throughout West LA, making it a convenient option for families to commute in together with their children. More than 1,800 children of faculty and staff have participated since the program’s inception in 2009.

Accessibility Basics Training
Learn how to make your department’s media accessible with a FREE hands-on webinar by the UCLA Disabilities and Computing Program. Students who have identified as disabled make up 16% of the UCLA student population, which include those who are blind, low-vision, or have dyslexia, making accessible design and content management tools important for their academic success. For questions, please contact Carolanne at clink@oit.ucla.edu.

Executive Education in the UCLA Fielding School of Public Health

The UCLA Fielding School of Public Health invites UCLA staff to look at our two executive-style MPH programs designed for working professionals. The Master of Public Health for Health Professionals (MPH|HP) program located in the Department of Community Health Sciences and the Executive MPH (EMPH) program located in the Department of Health Policy and Management. Students are able to maintain their full-time career while attending classes either one weekend per month or bi-weekly.

Please visit our websites for more information or to RSVP for the next information session.
